

Callie Betman – Nutrition and Dietetics Graduate Student

My favorite part of being part of the School of Ecology is that I was able to individualize my studies to coincide with my professional interests and career path. I was able to pick classes that have strengthened my clinical background and worked closely with knowledgeable professors with clinical experience. My professors and classmates have challenged me to continue to expand my knowledge and have given me the resources to excel in my career.