

Casey M. Morin is in the final year of his Master's degree at Louisiana Tech University. His primary research interest is in ants and he is currently looking at how ant diversity is impacted by bluestain fungi in coarse woody debris in a southeast pine forest. Additionally, Casey has done applied research working with product testing. While currently focused on ecology, he is also interested in evolution and systematics and is a member of the Entomological Society of America.