

I, Emily Walker, am a proud graduate of Louisiana Tech University. I completed my Bachelor of Science as well as Master of Science degree in Nutrition and Dietetics. After completing a dietetic internship through Louisiana Tech in 2004, I began working at Christus Schumpert as an inpatient dietitian. I am currently employed as an outpatient dietitian at Overton Brooks VA Medical Center in Shreveport. I volunteer in my community through the Young Women's Service Club of Minden. The education and internship experience I obtained through Louisiana Tech was truly amazing. The professors and courses prepared me for more than a job, they prepared me for experiences. I have had so many opportunities to showcase my love for nutrition by public speaking, media appearances, and writing articles for publication. Leadership skills learned while at Tech, led to me being elected President of the Louisiana Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics and being voted Outstanding Dietitian of the Year in 2016 and Minden South Webster 15 Under 40

Top Young Professional. I am forever indebted and grateful for every staff member and the education I received from Louisiana Tech. I make an effort to give back by visiting the undergraduate program and internship open house to sing the praises of the program and encourage others to pursue the dietetics profession through Tech. Since graduating, I married my husband, Barry and we have a son, Brody. I am so blessed that God placed Louisiana Tech in my path. Ever loyal will I be.
