

My name is Dhananjay Kishor Naik. I am currently in the second year of my Masters degree of Molecular Sciences and Nanotechnology. I am from Mumbai India originally and started at Tech in Fall 2015. I already have a Bachelors and a Masters from Biotechnology from India. The want to pursue better research was the driving force for my move to the United States. To that end I think I have achieved some of my goals over the time I have been here. Louisiana Tech is very different from the places I had done my studies before. I also been able to TA labs and kind of have started appreciating the job the professor do here in conveying the knowledge to these students.

I do intend to graduate very soon and this has at the end of the year.

I am thankful to my mentor Dr. Rebecca Giorno for her guidance through this degree. Also the atmosphere in the Department of Biological Sciences helped me feel like I was not an outsider. I would like to go work in the industry after graduation just to get some experience. After some years of experience I may go back and get a P.H.D by Ruston and Louisiana Tech will always have a big place in my life.
