

Kaitlyn Heiden

"Choosing to be a part of the School of Human Ecology is one of the best decisions I have made concerning my college career. Since I was a young girl, I have always wanted to help people, and by the time I was a freshman in high school I knew that pursuing a degree in Family and Child Studies would enable me to achieve that dream. As I began my freshman year of college, I discovered that my advisor and the professors of this school wanted to come along side me and help me achieve those dreams. By being an active member of the School of Human Ecology, I have been able to meet people from all walks of life, participate in hands on learning, conduct research related to my field, and give back to the community. Because of these dedicated professors, I am being trained and equipped to leave my collegiate days ready to help the world become a better place. I will forever be indebted to the School of Human Ecology for providing me with so many opportunities to grow into a well-rounded individual."